CLARK COUNTY

WAS created by act of Legislature, March, 1819, now over fifty years, and excepting Randolph, St. Clair and Gallatin, is among the oldest counties in the State. The first Court held in the then new county, was holden in the village of Darwin, on the banks of the Wabash River, in the extreme eastern portion of the county, and was presided over by Hon. WILLIAM WILSON, a gentleman of great legal ability and judicial experience. Wm. B. Archer, Esq., was appointed and acted as Circuit Clerk, and at the same time filled the County and Probate Clerkship, until March, 1820, when he resigned the office, and was succeeded by Jacob Harlan, Esq., who respectively held these offices until Sept., 1836. At that period, Hon. Uri Manly was appointed Circuit Clerk, serving until 1842, when he declined his further continuance in that position, and Newton Harlan, Esq., was appointed his successor, and held the position up to the first election of the Circuit Clerkship, by the people, occurring under the Constitution in 1848, at which election "Old Uncle Billy ARCHER," as he was familiarly known, was again chosen to the office, and which he filled the allotted time of four years. In 1852, Wm. P. BENNETT, Esq., was elected to the office, which he held eight years, or for two full terms, at the expiration of which time, in 1860, Thos. W. Cole was elected, and has been re-elected and continued in that office up to this period. In 1836, the Circuit and County Clerkships, having been separated, the latter being made elective, I. N. RATHBONE having been duly chosen, took charge on Sept. 5th, 1836, and served until March, 1837, when he resigned, and JOSIAH P. COOPER, Esq. was appointed County Clerk to fill the vacancy, and served until the 1st of September following, when Darius Phillips was elected and served from Sept. 1837, until December, 1851, and resigned, HOWARD HARLAN, Esq. filling the vacancy, by appointment, until January 1st, 1851. John Stockwell was then chosen and qualified, serving until January 10th, 1854, when ALLEN B. BRISCOE, Esq. was elected to that office and has been regularly elected and continued in the County Clerkship, up to this period.

Among the early Attorneys who figured in the Clark Circuit Court, were Justin Harlan, (who has been twice since Judge,) Gen. John M.

Robison and Col. Batt Webb, of Carmi, and others, and strange pleadings and primitive doings were transacted in the proceedings of the Courts then held, and very many of the Court records, if copied verbatim, would furnish matter of profound amusement to the legal fraternity and the generation of the present day.

The county seat continued at Darwin, until in January, 1836, when the Legislature passed an Act for the re-location thereof, and appointed Gen. Wm. F. Thornton, Wm. Prentiss and John Hendrix, of Shelby, and Charles Emerson and Wm. Reddick, Esqs., of Macon counties, Commissioners, to select such place as they might deem most advisable for the interests of the resident population; the act itself requiring that it should be located on the line of the National Road. The Commissioners after a thorough examination of all the surroundings, selected the present site of Marshall as the future county seat; when in accordance with the requirements of the act, Wm. B. Archer, Esq., the original proprietor of the lands, donated and deeded a large part in perpetuity to the county, for the construction of a Court House and other public buildings, which being surveyed and laid off in lots, were sold and the proceeds applied to the building of a fine Court House and Jail. Notwithstanding the location at Marshall, there were persons who were dissatisfied therewith, and who by their pertinacity succeeded in getting the Legislature, in February, 1849, to pass an Act submitting to the popular vote, a re-location of the county seat question. Several points became candidates for the re-location, and the excitement and interest in the result became profound, and finally when the day came and the vote polled, it was found that Marshall, the original selection of the special Commissioners, was decidedly victorious, and it has remained ever since that election, as it will probably always, the permanent county seat.

Clark county is some twenty-four or twenty-five miles east and west, by about the same north and south; the south-east corner being cut off by the line of the Wabash River. Two-thirds of it is timbered with some of the heaviest timber to be found in Illinois. The soil is mostly called clay soil, and finely calculated for the production of wheat, rye, oats, barley and grass. One third is prairie, a fine corn soil; Union and Walnut prairies, in the south part of the county, being bodies of land equal to any of the best lands in Illinois or Indiana. The resources of the county are great, it being known that large bodies of coal and other minerals exist throughout its borders, and the time is close at hand when they will be made available. Clark county is destined at no distant day to become populous and wealthy, and to make its mark in the niches of the great valley of the Wabash.

MARSHALL.

The county seat of Clark county, is one of the most finely located towns in the State, and contains a prosperous population of two thousand or upwards. The plateau on which the town is laid out commences at the Court House, on the highest ground in the center, and slopes just enough for drainage purposes to the four points of the compass; with little labor and expense it can always be thoroughly drained. Wm. B. Archer, Esq., one of the oldest and most enterprising men of the Wabash Valley, has resided upwards of fifty-five years in Clark county; he entered the lands upon which the town is built, and gave liberally to build it up. He it was, assisted by others, surveyed, platted and laid off the airy wide streets, and the large public square, that gives Marshall a splendid appearance, and when it is finely improved as it will be in future years, it will have one of the largest public squares in the State. It would seem as if Mr. Archer, with an eye of the prophet, had foreseen the future, and profoundly planned for the comfort of coming generations. The wide streets and large lots, (to say nothing of the best well water in this valley,) will always make it a desirable place of residence. The location is a very healthy one, being free from all malarious influences. Taking all the incidents into view, it is safe to assume, in a decade or two, that Marshall, as the county seat of the prosperous county of Clark, will grow in proportion, until it becomes one of the flourishing inland cities of Illinois. It is now well supplied with churches, to-wit: Congregational, Presbyterian, Methodist Episcopal, German Evangelical, Roman Catholic and Christian, (or Campbellite,) all of which have comfortable and commodious places of worship. The Catholic church (not yet finished) is a very large and superior brick building. There are four public schools, which rate as very good.

Marshall has been the residence of some of the most eminent and distinguished men of the Wabash region, among whom may be enumerated the late lamented Judge Charles H. Constable, one of the most polished gentlemen and able jurists of the State, and Hon. U. Manly, an enterprising and energetic business lawyer, who have passed away to live in the memory of many friends. There is yet living, Hon. Justin Harlan, one of the ablest jurists and lawyers in the Wabash region, Hon. Wm. B. Archer, now nearly 77 years of age, one of the most enterprising and public spirited men that has ever lived on the eastern side of the State, and who ought to have lived in his prime at this day and time, as but few men like him are to be found. The whole Wabash valley owes much to him for its improvements, settlement and progress. Hon. James C. Robison, (now of Springfield,) the statesman and orator, who so long and so ably represented the district in Congress; and lastly Hon. John Scholfield, a lawyer of great eminence and distinction, and the peer of any one in the law within the bounds of Illinois.

The steady growth of Marshall has been assured by the recent building of a railway direct from St. Louis to Terre Haute, passing by the borders of the town, in addition to which another railroad from Chicago to Danville, Paris, Marshall, and thence to Vincennes, (and now under contract, from Danville to Paris,) will be built. It will pass directly through the town, and must tend powerfully to develop the wealth and resources of the town and county.

A general summary of the trade will show that the business of the place is taken up, as follows: 3 dry goods stores, 5 grocers or provision dealers, 3 drug stores, 2 clothiers, 2 stove and tin establishments, 1 agricultural instrument warehouse, 11 attorneys, 4 physicians, 3 wagon makers, 4 blacksmiths, 1 marble cutter and undertaker, 2 furniture establishments, 3 shoe and boot-makers, 1 bakery, 1 dentist, 2 photographers, 2 publishers of papers, 1 billiard hall, 2 or 3 butchers, 1 fine flouring mill, 1 large woolen factory, 2 watchmakers, 2 tailoring establishments, 2 harness makers, 4 restaurants or saloons, 1 wool store, 1 large livery, feed and sale stable, 3 hotels, &c. &c.; all of which, taking them in the aggregate, are doing a large trade, and which added up will amount to a big figure. Such are the prospects and business of Marshall at the present time.

SPECIAL TAX LAW.

In lieu of licence, a special tax is now imposed on professions, trades and occupations. The liability to special tax depends, in many cases, upon the question whether the party makes a business of doing the acts specified. Occasionally acts do not render a person liable to special tax, but it is not necessary that the business should be his sole business, or even his principal one, to hold him liable.

Farmers and gardeners may sell all products of their own farms and gardens in the manner of pedlars, without payment of special tax as such. No special tax is required for the manufacture of BUTTER or CHEESE. Farmers and others who frequently furnish food and lodging to travelers for pay, should be taxed as hotel keepers. Occasional acts of the kind do not render any one liable.

THE SUCCESSION TAX.

The law also provides for the payment of a tax upon REAL ESTATE by all persons and corporations who become entitled in possession to real estate by reason of the death of any person, and by all persons and corporations who receive a gift or distribution of any interest in real estate while the grantor is living.

Notices of Business Men.

It may be well to notice a few of the prominent business men of Marshall. Classing first among them is—

LYMAN BOOTH—of the firm of Booth & Co. Lyman Booth is, in its strictest term, a Merchant Prince, of great experience in trade and financial matters. He is not only polite and affable, but a finished gentleman, who is exceedingly popular with the public, and well deserving his popularity. It is claimed that the sales made from his counters, for 1869, in the retail trade, exceed that of any other House on this side of the Wabash river. The company is doing a splendid business under his supervision.

Geo. A. Hippard—is another Dry Goods merchant, of fine business qualities, a pleasant and agreeable gentleman, who is doing a fair and thriving business in the mercantile line, and is greatly esteemed by those who are well acquainted with him. He keeps a full line of Goods at all times.

C. R. Steele—engaged in the Dry Goods and Notion trade, is a very agreeable young merchant, who is making his way up in the world. He is not only a modest, but most unassuming young gentleman, industrious and economical. He will win in the "battle of life."

Dan. Legore & Son—are popular druggists, doing a very large retail trade, their store being stocked with all that is desirable for the wants of the community. Uncle Dan is an old resident of Clark, widely known, and both him and his son are popular with the public, and they are worthy of the patronage bestowed on them.

J W. Anderson—is among the promising grocery and provision merchants of the place. He located in Marshall about two years since, and immediately engaged in an unaustentatious style in that line of trade, adopting the business motto of "fair dealing and small profits." By steadily adhering to that principle, he has succeeded in building up a very large and prosperous business, and has made numerous friends. This is attributable to his indomitable energy and unceasing efforts to accommodate his patrons and please all. His storerooms have been greatly enlarged and finished off in a tasty manner, and there is not to be found in the city of Terre Haute, any better arranged grocery establishment, than Anderson. In addition to his business he runs a "delivery wagon" free, to every part of town, Grp, his clerk, being a model delivery messenger, noted for integrity and honesty. Mr. Anderson is an affable, genial, clever gentleman, who has not only won, but is constantly winning golden opinions from the public. As a business man his popularity is rapidly increasing.
